EXCLAMATORY SENTENCES

An exclamatory sentence shows strong feeling. It helps to express love, anger, surprise happiness and other emotions. It ends with an exclamation mark (!)

An exclamatory sentence must have a subject.

An imperative sentence need not require a subject.

Examine the following sentences. Bubble the circles of the imperative sentences in red and exclamation sentences in green color.

1. Alas! It is dead!

Don't kill that lamb.

2. Bravo! Well done!

Just sit down and relax.

3. Anybody can answer.

What a silly answer!

$$2 \times 0 = \underline{0}$$

4. Put the waste papers in the dust bin.

I can't find the black sheep!
